Hendricks County is a national center for logistics

With a location that is close to so many of the nation's population centers, an extensive transportation network, and a skilled workforce, Hendricks County has become one of the nation's premier logistics, distribution, and manufacturing locations.

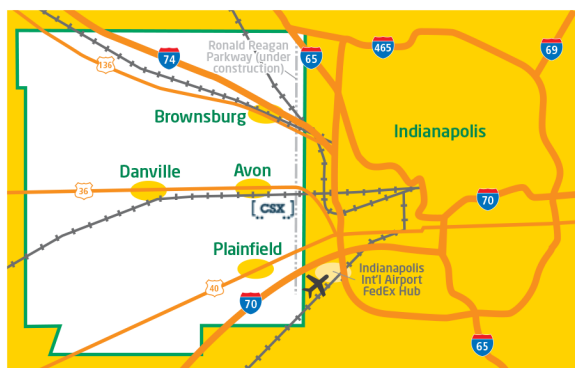

Hendricks County, Indiana has it all – affordable land and buildings, skilled workforce, friendly government and an abundance of business partners. Couple this with the interstate highways, rail and air service, and it's the perfect place to be.

John Sell, MD Logistics

HENDRICKS COUNTY

CONNECTED BY ROAD Hendricks County provides fast, easy connections to Interstates 65, 74, 70, 465 and 69, so we are less than a one-day drive from major population centers such as New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Dallas, Cincinnati, and Atlanta.

CONNECTED BY AIR We are adjacent to the new Indianapolis International Airport, which has extensive international air cargo operations. It is also home to the FedEx hub, so critical shipments can travel from your loading dock to the plane in a matter of minutes.

We selected Hendricks County because of the proximity to the airport and other logistical resources, as well as access to the highly skilled workforce.

CONNECTED BY RAILROAD Hendricks County is at the center of the CSX railroad network of more than 1,700 miles in Indiana. The CSX rail yard in Avon offers intermodal and bulk transfer services, giving local companies easy connections to obtain raw materials and ship finished goods worldwide.

WITH ROOM TO GROW There is an astounding 28 million square feet of prime distribution center space under roof in Plainfield, Hendricks County, some of it designated as Foreign Trade Zones. We also have an abundance of open land, allowing you to construct facilities to meet your own specifications.

Distribution in Hendricks County is like Wall Street in the investment world. It is like a feeding ground for transportation companies. All of the top three load broker boards will have a load in or out of Hendricks County every minute of every day.

Chris Carter, R.L. Carter Trucking, Inc.

Hendricks County offers logistics companies a highly skilled and motivated workforce that understands the challenges of international commerce. Our local government officials appreciate the importance of the logistics industry, and will help you work with other local companies to enhance your success.

EDUCATION IS IMPORTANT Local public schools are ranked among the best in Indiana, and our county offers the resources of Ivy Tech Community College and other postsecondary schools. The Hendricks College Network is a non-profit organization that connects companies with the resources of 16 Indiana colleges and universities to ensure a well-educated workforce.

International languages and cultures are supported locally through efforts such as Confucius Classrooms, the Confucius Institute in Indianapolis, and the nearby International School of Indiana.

A DESIRABLE PLACE TO LIVE Hendricks County is one of the most desirable places to live in the Indianapolis area, with high-rated schools and safe, friendly neighborhoods. The vibrant communities offer diverse shopping, dining, and recreational facilities. In addition, all of the arts, culture, sporting events, and everything else that are part of Indianapolis are just minutes away.
