

MADISON, INDIANA: THE ROUTE TO AUTOMOTIVE SUCCESS

AT THE CENTER OF THE OHIO RIVER VALLEY'S AUTO INDUSTRY

HOME TO INDUSTRY LEADERS

There are many reasons companies like Arvin Sango, Madison Precision Products, Grote Industries, and Vehicle Service Group thrive in Madison, Indiana. One of the biggest is that we're within 125 miles of assembly plants for Honda, Ford, Toyota, General Motors, and other manufacturers, as well as scores of companies supplying engines, transmissions, and other advanced components and services to the auto industry.

CONNECTIONS IN EVERY DIRECTION & MODE OF TRANSPORTATION

Bringing your business to Madison, Indiana puts you within 25 miles of Interstate Highways 65 and 71 – and less than an hour from Interstates 64, 74, and 75. That means you're just a short truck trip from your customers, suppliers, and markets around the country. We also are served by a city-owned shortline railroad, benefit from our close proximity to an international port facility to handle large equipment and commodities, and are a quick trip to international airports in Louisville, Cincinnati and Indianapolis. And our 62-acre certified Shovel-Ready industrial park means you'll begin production faster.

STRONG WORKFORCE AND OTHER RESOURCES

Indiana is a Right-to-Work state, and our area's skilled workforce, advanced manufacturing know-how, and competitive labor costs are a powerful combination. State and local taxes are very low, and Indiana's fiscal health results in a stable and predictable economy. Then, add in high-performing K-12 schools and business-friendly higher education resources like Hanover College and Ivy Tech Community College. On top of all that, Madison is a great place to live, with beautiful historic neighborhoods perched along the Ohio River.

DEFENSE LEADERS ARE ALSO CREATING A SAFER WORLD IN MADISON

CLOSE TO 14 DEFENSE FACILITIES

Bringing your defense business to Madison, Indiana means you'll be within 125 miles of 14 key defense facilities, among them Camp Atterbury Joint Maneuver Training Center, Muscatatuck Urban Training Center, Naval Surface Warfare Center-Crane, Wright-Patterson AFB, and the Louisville Naval Ordnance Station. Besides putting you close to defense facilities, you'll benefit from local workers having a strong knowledge of the special needs of the defense industry. Plus, we're the gateway to the former Jefferson Proving Grounds, offering thousands of acres of secluded terrain with restricted airspace that's perfect for R&D and testing.

FAST CONNECTIONS TO THE REGION AND NATION

Madison is within 25 miles of Interstate Highways 65 and 71 – and less than an hour from Interstates 64, 74, and 75 – putting you within a day's drive of scores of military installations, defense-related facilities, and manufacturers. We also have a city-owned shortline railroad and close proximity to port facilities on the Ohio River for affordable and responsive freight service. When you need to go further, you'll appreciate easy access to international airports in Louisville, Cincinnati, and Indianapolis.

READY TO MEET YOUR COMPANY'S NEEDS

Madison will get you in business faster with a 62-acre certified Shovel-Ready industrial park that includes expedited permitting. You'll also find workers who are up to your challenges at competitive labor costs thanks to our strong manufacturing base and Indiana's Right-to-Work status. State and local taxes are low, too. Our highly-rated K-12 schools involved in the EcO15 regional workforce initiative connect education and industry to provide a pipeline of qualified workers. Residents of the Madison area enjoy an outstanding quality of life due to our festivals, food, state parks, and beautiful setting on the Ohio River.
